

Blackberry Meadows Farm

Website About Us Who's on the farm? Garden Share Weddings/Events Contact Us

August 4, 2014

Dear Jennifer,

Over the weekend, while running errands, I heard many folks exclaim "Ohhh, it's August, Summer is almost over." Which is, in a way, hard for me to believe. June 21st is the longest day of the year and the days have slowly been getting shorter. . . . but our work load hasn't. In fact, Greg, Jameson and I are trying to steel the interns to the idea that things are only going to get harder before 'summer is over'.

We haven't yet tapped into our infamous tomato crop, the peppers are just ripening, and fall crops are finally getting planted into the fields. The weeds, like Red Root Pigweed, and Ragweed are just coming into their own (our weed-wackers aren't even strong enough to cut those weeds down). We've been string trimming and trellising tomatoes like fiends - until it's milking time or getting dark.

It's a busy life here on the farm. We work from sun up to sun down, eat big lunches together, laughing, and trying to grasp to

In This Issue

Permaculture Swale
Farm Partners
Weekly Menu
Farm News

Quick Links

www.blackberrymeadows.com
www.frankferd.com
www.allegroearth.com
www.natronabottlingcompany.com

The Weekly Menu

What you can roughly expect to receive this week:

For the 8th pick up - we'll have Green Beans, Basil, Garlic, Garlic Scapes, Dragon Tongue Beans, Zucchini, Yellow Squash, Herbs, (Cherry Tomatoes?? beets?? maybe!)

Future Farmers: Matty-B.

